2016-2018 Multifamily Council Form of Interest

ULI Colorado's Product Council program replicates the National Product Council Program at the local and regional level. We currently have three areas of concentration: the Multi-Family Product Council, the RETL (Resort, Entertainment, Tourism and Leisure) Product Council, and the Community Development Product Council (CDC).

All serve as an educational service and exclusive networking opportunity to a select group of District Council members.

Content and best practices will be shared through four programs planned over the course of 2 years. Membership is renewed annually. The Colorado Product Councils provide opportunity for leadership and volunteer involvement in ULI at the local level, by promoting excellence in programming and fostering a culture of openness and sharing of issues critical to the land use planning and real estate development industries. Please complete the below form in full to be considered for the 2016-2018 Council term.

Multifamily Product Council Program: lead by Colorado's top multi-family and residential developers, this group seeks to identify and analyze changing forces in the market and trends that guide development in the future. Participation will only include top leaders from a vetted list.

Past topics have included: affordable housing, policy updates, land trends, investment trends, city processes, funding sources, construction defects, with presentations and private tours from project leaders.

Product Council Chair(s):

Jeff Hawks, Apartment Realty Advisors
